

A Clean Colon is the First Step on the Ladder to Good Health!

The colon is a very important part of our digestive system. Many nutrients are absorbed through the walls of the colon. In order for absorption to work, the colon needs to be kept clean. The Royal Academy of Physicians is so aware of the importance that the colon plays in our health they have determined that "90% of all disease and discomfort is directly or indirectly related to an unclean colon." In addition, they report thirty-six types of toxins can form in the large intestine, get into the blood stream and "literally" destroy our bodies. Although we all try to eat foods with plenty of fiber to keep the colon clean, we are not always able to do so.
